I worked with Timothy Fink for twenty years. His mission is recognizing untapped potential and I am grateful he chose to invest his time in me. To this day, he expects nothing less from me or anyone else who is fortunate enough to work with him.

He is a very giving, very genuine leader helping each member of his team to find their own strengths and be leaders in their own right. His expertise in developing leaders is a delicate balance between a systems-oriented approach and a relationship-based approach. He has a gift for helping task-focused individuals build relationships and helping people-oriented individuals develop step-by-step processes to keep on task.

Tim is able to explain the "big picture" - the vision - and yet keep his team members focused on the task at hand. His training and management styles provides opportunities for others to see their own contribution to the larger vision.

I give Tim my highest recommendation. I know that in whatever capacity you choose to work with him you will be a better leader and a better team player. You will understand the systems of your business and how those systems relate to the larger community. Most of all, you will have a sense of personal fulfillment as you develop your potential.
